SOURCE WATER PROTECTION INFORMATION FOR RESIDENTS

Ways to Protect Water Sources in Winter

1. Only use the minimum amount of road salt and do not use salt within 100 metres of a well head.
2. Do not use salt if it is colder than -18°C . It will not work, sand and salt mix is better.
3. Do not shovel snow into sewers, waterways and at the end of culverts.
4. Shovel often during snow falls to reduce salt use.
5. Cover your salt storage to keep it from washing away and leaching into the water system.

Winter Vaults, commonly known as "dead houses", are used to store the bodies of those who die over the winter months when the ground is too frozen for simple burial. Nearly all the vaults to be discussed by Stephen Heaton are within a 40 mile radius of Mallorytown so you will all be able to go "dead house" hunting after the talk!
